

SLEEPER

GLOBAL HOTEL DESIGN

JULY | AUGUST 2017

Hotel Mono

Singapore's traditional shophouses transform into a minimalist's dream

The Ned

Soho House and Sydell Group breathe new life into Lutyens' Midland Bank masterpiece

The Oberoi Beach Resort

Piero Lissoni works his magic in the coastal wetlands of Ajman

Mandarin Oriental Bali

BUKIT PENINSULA

Mandarin Oriental Hotel Group has revealed that construction is under way for its inaugural property in Bali, a cliff-top resort on the Bukit Peninsula.

Forming part of Bukit Pandawa Resort & Golf, a luxury development from PT Bali Ragawisata, the resort comprises an 88-key hotel alongside 91 villas, both conceptualised by Jean Michel Gathy.

Perched on a cliffside plateau and constructed across elevated terraces overlooking the Indian Ocean, Gathy's design scheme draws influence from traditional Balinese farming techniques and the local aesthetic, with homage paid to the spirit of Balinese architecture in that no villa exceeds the height of a typical coconut tree.

To enhance the views for all residents and their guests, each villa will possess a flat roof dressed with an array of exotic grasses, shrubs and palm trees, a design flourish that also serves to create a seamless connection with the surrounding environment.

For the interiors, Gathy has collaborated with Jasin Tedjasukmana of Kiat Architects to create a style they describe as simple elegance. Local artwork, comfortable furniture, discreet water features and low-profile, high-tech features are blended in harmonious fashion.

The property will include an 88m swimming pool along the edge of the cliff-top, a private beach club steps from the ocean, a cantilevered gourmet restaurant, a state-of-the-art fitness centre and a 1,725m<sup>2</sup> spa with eight treatment rooms.

Together, the Mandarin Oriental hotel and residences will occupy approximately 5% of the 150-hectare piece of property that makes up Bukit Pandawa Resort & Golf. When complete, the destination will also be home to a Waldorf Astoria and a Swissôtel.